how to hack gecko os on wii u gecko os cheat code manager download Category:Video game cheating that drove him to the brink of despair and filled him with remorse. Paul confessed that the 20 drug dealers had been killed, but denied having a gun. When he was later charged with the murders, he claimed he had just “bluffed” the cops into giving him the gun by saying that he had killed and dismembered the three men he had found. Spotted by security cameras at a suburban house Paul’s case was solid. The deaths occurred only a few minutes from the house where Paul was stashing the drug dealers’ bodies, the police had the gun on him at the time he was arrested, and he confessed to having killed the three men. The judge chose to ignore Paul’s lying and confessions and give him life in prison. Paul’s response to being convicted was to claim that he had been forced by drug dealers to participate in the killings, and his lawyers were successful in overturning his conviction. It seems that Paul had an excellent alibi: a week after the killings, he was visited at a house he had stashed the bodies in and spent the night. At the time, he was terrified of being caught, and thought that he might get implicated if the police found his body; the drug dealers had told him that they would kill him if he was caught. In reality, they had already kidnapped and tortured a man named Matt for a similar reason. Paul got off scot-free and returned to New Orleans. And so it continued for 16 years. In the meantime, Paul became a hit man for the Louisiana Mafia, on top of running for major political office, serving 18 years in prison, cheating on his wife and even starting a family with a young woman. Paul and his wife eventually divorced, and Paul married the young woman. However, Paul’s womanizing continued; he became good friends with the notorious sex-criminal, who committed serious felonies after they were released, and the Louisiana Mafia began to fear that Paul would tell on them, so they went to work on him, one last f678ea9f9e
